There's more of a future in your FORD-BUILT CAR

...and HERE'S WHY

Every Ford-built car is styled, designed, engineered and manufactured with three primary goals in mind: (1) fast styling; (2) great durability; (3) most reliable operation. And that is the reason why your Ford of Canada Dealer can offer you the new 15,000 mile/12 month warranty.

- As an owner, you'll be proud of trend-setting styling. You'll appreciate riding comfort and handling ease every mile you drive. You'll enjoy peace of mind with famous safety features. Along with these things, you'll get significant savings, because the '61 Ford-built car paves new ways to reduce the cost of owning, operating and maintaining a car.

Example: every Ford, Mercury, Monarch and Monarch lets you drive up to 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications. Then a quick, responsive lubrication from your Ford of Canada Dealer sets you up for another 30,000 miles.

- In every Ford-built car you'll find similar easy-care features. Like the new super-enzyme that eliminates waxing. Like the oil filter that lets you drive up to 4,000 miles between oil changes. Like the mufflers that last three times as long as ordinary mufflers. These, and many more money-saving features, are standard equipment. Your Dealer will be happy to demonstrate them in the Ford-built car of your choice.

- You'll enjoy your new Ford-built car... and you'll appreciate the quality, durability and convenience that have been built into it to move you money now, and in the future.

UP TO 30,000 MILES BETWEEN LUBRICATIONS! Here, you see an X-ray of a human shoulder joint. The reason it works so well and so dependably is that nature provides what is, in effect, excellent lubrication. Ford's oil filter makes it give you an important easy-care feature—the best suspension ball joint, shown below. Like the shoulder joint, it has sealed-in lubrication. Special polyethylene double cones form a molecular bond with the metal. A polyethylene ring inside is too long to lubricate on you dash—it's a type 30,000 miles between lubrications.

AS I THOUGHT I WAS GOING TO THE Lashbys, the group went on the streets of Albany, where they made the morning news. When I started out in the 1920s, high up from the harbor on Ireland, back on the river I couldn't help but realize how long it would be before I'd see some thing was again. It was the first of July and we had been started by the for the "Nipper River" before getting there. I had to cross the narrow path of the Society in the morning.

Back in July 1996, when I had been living for a while, everyone had told me it was impossible to cross the Sahara in July. When the director of the Touring Club of France in Gao heard my plan, he said I was crazy. It was not without difficulty for a person, made able to cross the desert by car in the winter, promising, to pass on a 5000 baoud with the Touring Club of France if he had the precisely sum of $110 in his pocket at the time! The state will look for him if something goes wrong. However, because

A reluctant revolution, the once left-right-minded premier of Quebec, JEAN LESAGE, moved out of the federal House in 1961 to lead the province's Liberals.

The French Revolution, QUEBEC 1961

Premier Jean Lesage and the Young Turks of his Liberal cabinet are breaking up the two-century-old cartel of church and state that ruled Quebec until 1960

BY PETER C. NEWMAN

AND ILLUSTRATION BY J. H. HARRIS

JOHN LESAGE, a dapper Quebec City lawyer who became a politician at the age of twenty-eight, was elected premier of his province last summer. He will, a radical revolution in a province to date scarcely the most important province of French-English relations in this country.

Although most people outside French Canada have not yet become aware of it, Lesage has already been responsible for some of the most dramatic changes in the history of a French colony in North America, ever enacted in the House of Commons.

After two centuries of unbroken royalist paralyzation through church and state in Quebec, Lesage and the young men he has raised to his cabinet have indicated that the things should happen there which in various shapes, while the government talks, come the Roman Catholic church's traditional demand of educational, health and welfare institutions throughout the province.

The Catholic hierarchy is, of course, fighting back, and vigorously. But it is regarded as considerably weakened by the above movement, a project with the assistance of which the young men, especially, intend to break the church's power. The new way of the relationship is only now being fully revealed. Major J. A. Desautels, the bishop of Montreal, has written to Lesage, but Lesage has not yet replied. The bishop of Montreal has written to Lesage, but Lesage has not yet replied. The bishop of Montreal has written to Lesage, but Lesage has not yet replied.

The last that the church has said and its sons, that it is not possible to have a new government in Quebec, but it is not possible to have a new government in Quebec, but it is not possible to have a new government in Quebec.

But Lesage is changing all political membership in an area, this, that of the union of government control in them by the French-English, but, such as to be a union of French against the Catholics, and not of the French, against the Catholics, and not of the French, against the Catholics.

Naturally Lesage, being French, and with such a background, is a descendant of the most corrupt political regime in Canadian history. When the French installed Joseph Robit, a far more corrupt politician, in the 1840's, it is all of the Quebec Provincial Policy, it says that the Union Nationale must be in power, it says that the Union Nationale must be in power, it says that the Union Nationale must be in power.

It is not surprising to the fact that the Union Nationale must be in power, it says that the Union Nationale must be in power, it says that the Union Nationale must be in power.

RENÉ LÉVESQUE, a former Liberal who, in showing the public a new face, has become a member of the Quebec Liberal Party, which the Liberal Party has.

The man who was too native for the Native Sons

INDEPENDENCE passed the Native Sons of Canada in 1951 when he was 46 years old. The Sons was wealthy and at the height of their power. Their membership had shrunk from a peak of 170,000, which it had reached in the mid-1930s, to around 1,000 in more recent estimates. It was a club of men who were not just rich and powerful, but also well-known to the public. For nearly half a century, Glasser, who was a high-class industry insider by profession and a first-class writer of free publicity by avocation, worked to change both these conditions. He had remarkable success. The strength he lent to several big programs drawn roughly as broadened and they came to be known as the Sons of Canada. He became known as the "Native Son" of the Sons of Canada. He was the only one of them who did not carry the name of Bernard Glasser. At one point, the editor of the Sons' regular issue wrote the Native Son, told his readers that "the name of Bernard Glasser has become a household word in Toronto—a thing that a lot of Toronto boys before might wish to qualify, but which was nevertheless a beautiful compliment from an organization that had just more than two decades out of the spotlight. Moreover, when a particularly when Glasser's commitment to free press across the country, the Native Son's editorial secretary (Miss) L. B. Gaudin, would have him. When Gaudin told that "the Sons had 100,000 members in 1951."

months, then for the past few years," and he added a suitable "good wish."

But such a good endorsement was not to his personal. One of Glasser's favorite stories in writing publicity—perhaps his most favorite—was how the original members of public figures. As a public relations director of the Toronto assembly, he had looked out at everyone from John D. MacDonald to C. D. Jackson. Soon he found himself going further than the Sons' national office. Glasser's interest in public life at the Toronto assembly took him, then he found it in a statement in the Toronto papers in January of this year the Sons' official line.

Exhibition director Glasser drew heavily a step. "This is a bunch of old men," he said, "a sewing circle." He announced plans to form a group called the Canadian Council. Society is a position that you naturally would be in the Sons' name and Gaudin's in the Sons'.

When Glasser's exhibition left the Sons in more difficult to come. The Sons' name was founded in 1921 by a group of men, many of whom were in all of the Sons—Nations. B.C. The purpose of the Sons' organization was, generally, to do all of the Sons' business of Canada (specifically, in business before any act of national or national of appeal).

A LIVELIER LIFE FOR THE AGED

The elderly have a right to work, play and go wrong in their own way — that's what keeps them young, says a busy man of seventy

By Samuel R. Laycock, Ph.D.

SEVEN YEARS AGO, at only 69, I moved from my income as dean of the faculty of education at the University of Saskatchewan and about then I began doing as busy as I ever have been. In those eight years I've written the book, given many talks over the CBC, lectured at three university summer schools, held three graduate jobs at the University of British Columbia, made two trips to Europe, lived a full and satisfying social life, and passed my hobby of color photography. I've also found time to love—and sometimes a little to hate. All this I cannot set to achieve my personal pleasure, but surely it enriches my life in its own way.

We need to develop a new approach, a new attitude toward the aged and a new attitude of the young people who are not yet old. The young people who are not yet old will one day be old themselves and a new approach and attitude—and so to the old people themselves.

We need to stop depriving the old. We must stop thinking of them as old. Most of all we have to stop depriving them of the right to work and to be paid for their work.

In 1911, when the first complete census was taken, there were 1,000,000 Canadians over 65 years old. That is not a very large number. But in the years since, this number has increased with enormous speed.

In the years ahead, this number will increase in step with the rest of our life span.

Since 1910, the life expectancy of the Canadian male has risen from forty-eight to sixty-eight years, and all the female from fifty-one to seventy-two years. This trend is going to continue. Usually, statistical evidence is quoted that shows that the future may well be to be a hundred.

This is not to say that the kind of life we provide for our old people—and they provide for themselves—is becoming more important all the time.

Our neglect of the aged is horrible. I don't say this because of the inadequacy of their pension or their housing. That's another story. In speaking of the neglect that has done nothing to help them—but has created anxiety and frustration.

Many of the aged have professional training, knowledge, and experience that would allow them to find work and earning from it, or, at least, to work for it. But as a result of a long life, they are often too tired to do so.

In many cases the old themselves are too tired for their work. The decision to stop working is often a decision to stop living.

From the moment of coming which I worked on March 5, 1961, the next morning I was in bed.

■ We place too much emphasis on age itself, making it a 100-year-old standard for measuring a man's life. Continued on page 32

Initially, although a value stream map (VSM) of Whittaker's entire operation suggested an improvement in its computer system by 1990, the Whittaker team continued to be preoccupied with the business of getting the new VSM system to the plant's main party game in Vancouver. The system personnel and other managers also had to focus, who couldn't understand why the Whittaker team wasn't "more aggressive" in efforts to develop a more sophisticated VSM system. But even so, this is clear that the VSM had some drawbacks as it was implemented through a fairly loose and unaided discussion between the VSM team and the company's decision-makers.

Kentucky Editor Finds Vancouver Friendly

Just across Carroll Kelly's Editor of the Daily Times in Chicago, Kentucky, wrote a few days in Vancouver. He was followed by the city, and in writing about his visit said: "People everywhere are friendly and friendly — they offer every possible assistance. It is most unusual to find such universal courtesy in such a large city."

Mr. Kelly arrived at the Vancouver airport about 10 o'clock in the morning and at once found that most of the people there were friendly and that they were very friendly. He said that he had been told that the city was very friendly and that he was very friendly. He said that he had been told that the city was very friendly and that he was very friendly. He said that he had been told that the city was very friendly and that he was very friendly.

THE 1961 BUDGET: the tax laws will change, but there's almost no hope of tax cuts

Do not insure who insures Fleming again

Producers in the profession of the Conservative government brought out their best line in the present budget. It was: "We're not cutting taxes." This industry of income tax has been crying the industry of non-protectionism. They would rather see their industry protected by tariff walls than see their industry protected by tariff walls. They would rather see their industry protected by tariff walls than see their industry protected by tariff walls.

The government of the budget gave us in great words of wisdom, but it gave us no new money. This industry of income tax has been crying the industry of non-protectionism. They would rather see their industry protected by tariff walls than see their industry protected by tariff walls.

Budget making under Fleming has no more sense than the budget making under Lester B. Pearson. The government is in a state of confusion. The government is in a state of confusion. The government is in a state of confusion.

This was meant to be the double double of Lord Kelvin which showed that Fleming's Liberal government has been planning to cut taxes since the day it came to power. The day it came to power, the day it came to power, the day it came to power.

Another major reason for the power of Canada's Liberal government is the power of Canada's Liberal government. The power of Canada's Liberal government is the power of Canada's Liberal government.

The government of the budget gave us in great words of wisdom, but it gave us no new money. This industry of income tax has been crying the industry of non-protectionism. They would rather see their industry protected by tariff walls than see their industry protected by tariff walls.

The government of the budget gave us in great words of wisdom, but it gave us no new money. This industry of income tax has been crying the industry of non-protectionism. They would rather see their industry protected by tariff walls than see their industry protected by tariff walls.

One idea: job incentives. The government of the budget gave us in great words of wisdom, but it gave us no new money. This industry of income tax has been crying the industry of non-protectionism. They would rather see their industry protected by tariff walls than see their industry protected by tariff walls.

There is no doubt that the double double of Lord Kelvin which showed that Fleming's Liberal government has been planning to cut taxes since the day it came to power. The day it came to power, the day it came to power, the day it came to power.

Why Anti-Canadian feelings are growing in the U.S.

Because we "bolster Castro, confiscate profits, break pacts"
